

PACENow
Executive Director, New York

PACENow is an innovative not for profit that is working to accelerate the development of the PACE industry through the development of the asset class and nationwide adoption of PACE finance programs. See <http://pacenow.org/>

Essential Functions:

PACENow is looking to hire an entrepreneurial Executive Director, ideally based in New York, who will help lead the development of the PACE industry.

Specifically, this individual would:

- Lead PACENow's outreach and discussions with the financial sector with an emphasis on developing the PACE asset class
- Work with our nation's largest real estate companies (commercial, industrial, distribution, multi-family) to help create large portfolios of PACE retrofit programs
- Lead/organize the various PACE industry stakeholders to ensure that the industry is properly represented at the Federal and State levels
- Design and advocate for financial mechanisms and associated policy initiatives that facilitate the rapid scale up of PACE programs
- Ensure that PACENow provides states and municipalities with the proper tools to both pass PACE enabling legislation and to implement and oversee successful PACE programs

Skills and Knowledge Requirements:

The ideal candidate will have the personal and professional skills to advance PACENow's objectives, including:

- Minimum ten years of financial sector experience; ideally this would include relevant experience in more than one of the following areas: developing a rapid growing asset class, securitization, real estate and/or municipal finance
- Successful experience in strategic thinking, interacting with senior level officials and driving implementation of collaborative projects
- Superior communication skills, including the ability to engage effectively with a broad range of stakeholders such as government officials, private sector actors, nongovernmental organizations, and funding organizations
- Familiarity with energy policy climate
- Development skills a plus
